REPORT :-

Gour Banjaras have different cultural life and practices that differentiate them from others. They also have their own language, food habits, body tattooing, dress and ornaments, art, Martial art, Gorilla fighting skill, 'Ghumar' dance, and festivals and ceremonies, which have formed their culture. Gor Banjara culture includes their language, costume, marriage customs, festivities, folk and performing arts, and many other capabilities acquired by them. Women are known to wear colorful and beautiful costumes like phetiya (as ghagra) and kanchalli (as top) and have tattoos on their hands. The dress is considered fancy and attractive by Western cultures. They use mirror chips and often coins to decorate it. Women put on thick bangles on their arms (patli). Their ornaments are made up of silver rings, coins, chain and hair pleats are tied together at the end by chotla.

I visited to meet Banjara folk singer in Rampur Tanda (Karnataka) her name is Smt. Kashibai and Hunkabai. They have different style to sing a Banjara folk songs. They have well looked outfits like above mentioned matters. I learned about one of the different culture and tradition of India. Music and dance are integral parts of the Banjara culture. Their folk songs and dances depict tales of love, nature, and rural life. The Ghoomar dance of Rajasthan and Lambadi dance of Karnataka are famous examples of their captivating performances.
