Test Interpretation-

- Anti-thyroid peroxidase (anti-TPO) antibodies are specific against TPO, which catalyses iodine oxidation & iodination reactions in the thyroid gland.
- 10-15% of normal individuals & during pregnancy can have raised anti-TPO antibody titres.
- Anti-TPO antibodies are the most common anti-thyroid autoantibody, present in approximately 90% of Hashimoto's thyroiditis, 75% of Graves' disease and 10-20% of nodular goitre or thyroid carcinoma. Relatives of patients with an autoimmune thyroid disorder (40%-50%) may have elevated serum TPOAb levels. High serum antibodies are found in active phase chronic autoimmune thyroiditis & antibody titer can be used to assess disease activity. Other autoimmune disorders often associated with elevated TPOAb include: Sjogren's syndrome, lupus, rheumatoid arthritis, diabetes mellitus (type1) and pernicious anemia.
