Objectives:

- To promote knowledge, interest, education, and the enjoyment of bonsai and other living plant materials.
- The objective in bonsai is to stunt the growth of a tree in such a way that its proportions appear to be the same as a full-grown tree, only much smaller.
- Combining both horticultural and artistic skills , regardless of the species, is to create the illusion of fully grown, mature trees in miniature. It involves the bringing of tree(s) and pot together into visual harmony.

Instructional Design:-

This course is of three month duration which includes theory and practical classes.

Course Structure and Examination Scheme:-

Course No	Course Name	Theory Classes	Laboratory Experiments	Theory Marks	VivoVosa	Total Marks
01	Poultry Keeping	30hrs	-	40	10	40

Eligibility: All students belonging to Sixth semester students are eligible to enroll for the course.

DEPARTMENT OF ZOOLOGY

Certificate Course "POULTRY FARMING"

SUMMARY:

poultry farming, Raising birds commercially or domestically for meat, eggs, and feathers. Chickens, ducks, turkeys, and geese are the birds of primary commercial importance. Guinea fowl and squabs are chiefly of local interest. Though chickens have been domesticated for at least 4,000 years, their meat and eggs have been mass-production commodities only since c. 1800.

Mass production of chicken meat and eggs began in the early 20th century, but by the middle of that century meat production had outstripped egg production as a specialized industry. The market for chicken meat has grown dramatically since then, with worldwide exports reaching nearly 12.5 million metric tons (about 13.8 million tons) by the early 21st century.

The breeds of chickens are generally classified as American, Mediterranean, English, and Asiatic. While there are hundreds of breeds in existence, commercial facilities rely on only a select few that meet the rigorous demands of industrial production. The single-comb White Leghorn, a Mediterranean breed widely used throughout the global egg industry, is a prolific layer that quickly reaches sexual maturity. The Cornish Cross, a hybrid of Cornish and White Rock, is one of the most-common breeds for industrial meat production and is esteemed for its compact size and rapid, efficient growth.

① This system involves rearing of poultry on raised wire netting floor in smaller compartment, called cages, either fitted with stands on floor of house or hinged from the roof.

It has been proved very efficient for laying operations, right from day-old to till disposal.

The cage system of rearing birds has been considered as a super intensive system providing floor area of 450-500 sq. cm (0.6 - 0.75 sq. feet) per bird.

In cage the birds are kept in one, two or three per cage. arranged in single or double or triple rows.

There are 4 main kinds of large chicken farms pullet farms that raise chickens to be sent to layer farms or broiler farms that produce chicken for broiler farms & layer chicken farming that produce eggs.

Poultry can be defined as domestic fowls including chickens, turkeys, geese & ducks.

③ Cage System

This system involves rearing of poultry on raised wire netting floor in smaller compartments, called cages, either fitted with stands on floor of house or hanged from the roof.

The main advantages of battery cages for laying hens over alternative free range systems are:

(i) Increased hygiene resulting in a much lower incidence of diseases in which the infectious agent is spread through the droppings.

(ii) Small group size resulting in a low incidence of social friction.

(iii) Ease of management.

There are 3 types of cage system

(i) Single or individual bird cage
(Only one bird in a cage)

(ii) Multiple bird cage.
(From 2 to 10 birds, usually 3 or 4 birds)

(iii) Colony cages.
(Housing birds more than 11 per cage)

④ Brooding :

→ Brooding refers to the period immediately after hatch when special care & attention must be given to chicks to ensure their health & survival.

• Brooding is defined as the management of chicks from one day old to about 8 weeks of age.

• It involves the provision of heat & other necessary care during chicks early growing period.

Feeding :

Wheat usually is one of the best grains for poultry feeding, although a proportion of ~~some~~ ^{other} grains in some form should always be included in the ration, along with wheat.
